which is not primarily concerned by the applicability of its findings. Knowledge production modes - Wikipedia arguments about knowledge diffusion and disciplinarity (i.e., silo vs. web arguments) are counterproductive. Disciplinary researchers do import and export ideas, but they do not trade with all disciplines equally. The important question, then, is not whether disciplines are silos or connected in evolving social and intellectual webs in general. Interdisciplinarity and insularity in the diffusion of ... 2 The utilitarian regime of science and technology production and diffusion.
